

Indiantown Road #1

A photograph of a wooden utility pole. The pole is weathered and has several electrical components attached to it. At the top, there are two large, dark, cylindrical components, possibly transformers or capacitors, mounted on a cross-arm. Below these, there are more wires and smaller components. The background is a solid, overcast grey sky. The text "Willow Road #2" is overlaid in the bottom left corner in a white, serif font.

Willow Road #2

A photograph of a wooden utility pole with various electrical equipment and wires against a clear blue sky. The pole is vertical and has several wires attached to it. There are some electrical components, including what looks like a transformer or a meter, mounted on the pole. The wires are black and run in different directions. The sky is a uniform light blue.
